Before you begin

Section A

Suggestions

Practise one exercise at a time.
Practise a unit at least twice.
Check the answers in the answer key.
Write a sentence of your own using each of the key words, phrases or expressions used in the particular exercise.
Use the key words, phrases and expressions that you have learnt in a particular exercise in your everyday language.

How to attempt the exercises

First look at the exercise. The exercises generally have 1 to 10 tasks. Then play the audio. You will hear a sentence or a conversation or a talk for each task. After you hear the sentence or the conversation or the talk, pause the audio for 10 seconds. Use this time to attempt the task. Then go on to the next task and repeat the same procedure. Study the given example.

Example:

On the audio, you will hear:
(man): 1. I've got a flat tyre.

Pause the audio

In the booklet, you will read:

1. ☐ tire ☐ tyre

Tick the correct option. In this case, you should tick the second option because that is the word you heard.

Play the audio for the next number.

Section B

Suggestions

Complete at least one test in one sitting.
Read the instructions carefully before attempting the tests.
Check the answers in the answer key to determine your score.

How to attempt each test type

Test: Type 1

Follow the instructions printed in the question paper.

There are ten tests of this type.

Test: Type 2

This test type is similar to Section A exercises. But in this case, after each question, the audio contains the allotted time gap. So, do not pause the audio manually. Use this time gap to answer the question.

You are not supposed to replay the audio for any particular question. You should listen to the audio only once.

There is only one test of this type. The test has three sections.

Test: Type 3

In this test type, you should attempt all the tasks as you listen and not after you listen. So, there are no time gaps allotted.
You will have to listen to the audio, read the questions and give your answers all at the same time.
In this test type, you are asked to either circle a particular letter or write a few words. So, read the printed instructions very carefully.
You are not supposed to replay the audio for any particular question. You should listen to the audio only once.

There is only one test of this type. The test has three sections.
